

Judith Groudine Finkel practiced law for twenty-four years before retiring to write TEXAS JUSTICE. Her shorter works have appeared in newspapers, magazines and journals. Among other awards, Judith was the recipient of a Summer 2008 Fishtrap Fellowship. She lives in Houston, Texas with her husband Howard who shares her favorite pastime of entertaining their granddaughter Sia.

by Judith Groudine Finkel

268 pages

Thriller

US$13.95

ISBN: 978-0-9814672-9-0

Fireside Book # 8093

Mara Levine is determined to save her nineteen-year-old son Ariel from being convicted of murder. She battles an ambitious prosecutor, an experienced detective and her former husband whose efforts to protect Ariel backfire.

As Mara seeks the actual killer, she never admits to herself that he could be her son.

Ariel Levine, a teen with no history of violence, seems an unlikely murder suspect, until his writings reveal his violent fantasies. Is he the victim of mistaken identity his mother claims or the manipulative murderer the prosecutor presents to the jury?

Judith is available for telephone conversations with book groups. She can be reached by email at texasjustice.finkel@yahoo.com

Another Publication from the shelves of

www.firesidepubs.com